RE: Meeting of the Commission on Chicago Landmarks – April 13, 2023

Statement of the Federal Court

Thank you for notifying the Court that at its April 13, 2023 meeting, the Commission on Chicago Landmarks will be considering preliminary landmark designation of the 202 and 220 South State Street properties (hereafter, the “Properties”). The Court offers the following statement for the record.

The Dirksen Courthouse is located just feet away from the two Properties under consideration. This Courthouse is the only one ever designed by renowned designer Ludwig Mies van der Rohe and is the largest federal courthouse in the nation. It houses not only the District and Bankruptcy Courts for the Northern District of Illinois, but also the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, the U.S. Attorney, and additional federal government offices. The Dirksen Courthouse is a significant contributor to activity in Chicago’s downtown. Some 1,200 employees, and thousands of members of the public, visit the Courthouse each week to serve on juries, to be sworn in as new citizens, and to conduct criminal and civil litigation in this Courthouse.

A note on the history of the Properties: Congress appropriated funds for purchase of the two buildings, as well as the two small buildings between 202 and 220, by the General Services Administration (GSA) in 2005. The specific purpose for this purchase was to protect the Courthouse by creating a security buffer zone. Specifically, the Congressional Budget Justification for Fiscal Year 2005 authorized GSA to acquire additional land for the purpose of increased security by eliminating the possibility of private sector development proximate to the Dirksen Courthouse. In 2005, when the properties were acquired, GSA expected they would be used to fill an anticipated need for federal office space in Chicago. In the years since then, GSA’s need for tenant space has declined, but the need for a security buffer has greatly increased. Congress passed the 2022 Consolidated Appropriations Act with funding to demolish the four properties, thus fulfilling the intention of the 2005 purchase.

Since the last time that we communicated with the Commission on Chicago Landmarks, the General Services Administration has begun the Section 106 Process mandated by the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA) to address the future of the buildings at 202, 208-212, 214 and 220 South State Street. This includes a Public Scoping Meeting in November of 2022, defining the 15 security criteria applicable to any Viable Adaptive Reuse of the properties. As part of the Section 106 process, GSA has identified consulting parties and conducted several meetings with these consulting parties. More recently, GSA has prepared a conditions assessment report and has determined that the building located at 208-212 State Street has such significant structural issues that immediate demolition is necessary to ensure public safety.

The Section 106 Process is ongoing. We understand the Draft Environmental Impact Statement will be published this month, and an estimate of the cost to rehab the buildings is scheduled to be issued in May. An additional consulting party meeting is scheduled for later this month, focused on a discussion of security concerns. In short, the Section 106 Process is underway, but far from complete. A Record of Decision is scheduled for February 2024.

We note suggestions that the Court should consider security enhancements that may be adequate to address the Court's safety concerns. Media reports have suggested that those concerns are limited to sight lines into the Courthouse from the buildings at issue. We can assure you that while sight lines are significant, law enforcement experts have identified several additional concerns. We also want to assure the Commission that our security assessments—conducted by public and private organizations—have devoted substantial attention to alternative measures. Available security enhancements are limited by the size, structure, and setting of the Dirksen Courthouse. Many of the proposed modifications are not possible for reasons relating to the construction and design of the Courthouse and limitations imposed by our Courthouse's own listing on the National Register of Historic Places.

We are also aware that other federal courthouses are situated in downtown urban areas, sometimes in close proximity to other buildings. We are not able to disclose specific mitigating efforts in place at other courthouses, many of them adopted for structures built in more recent years or with different construction means and methods. Similarly, we are not able to disclose the specific security concerns relating to our own Dirksen Courthouse. No two buildings are alike. Every Courthouse has different threat assessments based upon not only the circumstances of their construction, their geographic boundaries, physical access, and the nature of courthouse activities.

We remain committed to participating in the Section 106 process with GSA, our neighbors, tribal leaders, historical preservation organizations, and other consulting parties. Allowing the State Street Properties to stand vacant indefinitely is a resolution that satisfies no one. We therefore look forward to reviewing proposals for any viable reuse of the properties that would meet the established 15 required security criteria.

Yours truly,

Rebecca R. Pallmeyer

RE: Meeting of the Commission on Chicago Landmarks – April 13, 2023

GSA provides the following statement regarding the Commission on Chicago Landmarks' proposed Preliminary Landmark Recommendation for the Century and Consumers buildings located respectively at 202 and 220 South State Street in Chicago, Illinois.

As stated in our previous letter to the Commission in September 2022, GSA has long acknowledged the historic and architectural significance of these historic properties. We recognize that these two buildings are identified as contributing properties, under Criteria A and C at the local level of significance, to the National Register of Historic Places-listed, Loop Retail Historic District. As such, local significance is acknowledged and considered during the consultation process required by Section 106 of the National Historic Preservation Act (NHPA).

Also stated previously, GSA is formally neutral on the Commission's proposal to designate the buildings as landmarks under the Commission's criteria. As a neutral party, GSA can best facilitate the Section 106 process, and work with our Consulting Parties towards an agreement on the future of the properties that align with federal needs and requirements.

The Section 106 consulting party discussions are underway. Our plan is to seek a final agreement by December 2023. We value the input of all Consulting Parties involved in the Section 106 effort, including the City of Chicago Department of Planning and Development. The expertise of City of Chicago participants in this consultation process will greatly assist us in seeking agreement among the parties on the future of these properties.

We appreciate this opportunity to address the Commission.

Sincerely,

Re: The Century and Consumers Buildings, 202 and 220 S. State Street, Chicago

Dear Chairman Wong and Members of the Commission on Chicago Landmarks,

Preservation Chicago strongly encourages the Chicago Landmark designation and adaptive reuse of The Century and Consumers Buildings, located at 202 and 220 S. State Street in Downtown Chicago. These two structures have continued to be part of our "Preservation Chicago - Chicago 7 Most Endangered Buildings" program in 2011, 2013, 2022 and again in 2023. It is our opinion that the future of the historic Century and Consumers Buildings will soon be determined, and a Chicago Landmark designation by the Commission on Chicago Landmarks and the City of Chicago, will lead to many potentially positive outcomes.

We wish to thank the Commission on Chicago Landmarks, the Chicago Department of Planning and Development leadership and staff, for bringing these important threatened buildings forward for consideration. We at Preservation Chicago, strongly support their designation as Chicago Landmarks.

Located on State Street in the vibrant and thriving heart of Chicago's Loop, the 16-story Century Building (1915, Holabird and Roche) and the 22-story Consumers Building (1913, Jenney, Mundie & Jensen) are listed on the National Register for Historic Places. Also, the two historic structures have been determined to meet the strict criteria in prior Commission on Chicago Landmarks presentations for Chicago Landmark Designation, by DPD-Historic Preservation Staff.

In addition, architect Ludwig Mies van der Rohe recognized and valued these tall, early, historic terra cotta skyscrapers. It's well-known that he used the surrounding historic buildings of the Chicago School of Architecture, to frame and contextualize his Chicago Federal Center masterpiece. Specifically, the nearby Marquette Building, the Monadnock Building, and with the Dirksen Courthouse's main entryway on Quincy Court, dramatically framed by the modernist Benson & Rixon store, and Jenney, Mundie & Jensen's, Consumers Building.

There is much more at stake here than just the two historic terra cotta skyscrapers at both State Street and Adams and Quincy Court. Chicago's 'Early Chicago Skyscrapers' are currently under consideration as a UNESCO World Heritage Site. If the Century and Consumers Buildings were to be demolished, it would jeopardize the potential eligibility for this extraordinary designation and international recognition.

We at Preservation Chicago, wanted to also share the story and video released last year by “The B1M,” a media source out of London, on the Century and Consumers Buildings, located at 202 and 220 S. State Street in Chicago. Within seven hours of the release of the story, it had over 100,000 views and now has 1.2 million views. This number increased by 18,000 views in just one week prior to the Commission’s meeting last year and this nine-minute video is The B1M’s first story on Chicago. The video is beautifully produced and gives a short overview and history of the built environment, the early skyscrapers, the issues regarding the Century and Consumers Buildings, and our Landmark buildings in Chicago. Here’s the link to the story: <https://youtu.be/BmiDUw-MPWA>

We were honored at Preservation Chicago, to have been a part of this amazing piece and story about our beautiful city and wanted to share this information with all of you on the Commission on Chicago Landmarks, as part of the public record. Last year, the Commission on Chicago Landmarks voted to further the research on these two seminal buildings and request a formal Chicago Landmark Recommendation Report, so we felt this would be important information to share. The piece now also has 20,000+ “likes,” from across the world.

We also wanted share that our “Preservation Chicago, Change.org petition” for the Century and Consumers Buildings has now surpassed the 23,000-signature mark, with support for preservation, landmarking and reuse of the two buildings from people across the nation and world. This all indicates the tremendous support to save these two important Chicago School buildings from potential harm and demolition.

We at Preservation Chicago have submitted the Change.org petition list of signatures for the public record, along with The B1M video for today’s hearing before the Commission on Chicago Landmarks, where the Century and Consumers Buildings are part of the Commission on Chicago Landmarks Agenda.

Again, we wanted to share this amazing support from across the globe for the Century and Consumers Buildings and Chicago’s early skyscrapers, including nine buildings which are being considered as a UNESCO World Heritage site. However, as noted prior and in our testimony before the Commission, US/ICOMOS has warned, a loss of these two buildings to demolition will adversely and profoundly impact Chicago’s chances of the “Chicago’s Early Skyscrapers,” from being forwarded to join the UNESCO sites around the globe.

That would be a tragic loss to our City, our built environment, State Street, and also the tremendous loss of potential architecture and heritage tourism—potentially millions of additional visitors to Chicago.

Thank you for your time in noting this support for the Century and Consumers Buildings, in the very heart of our City. We at Preservation Chicago, fully support the Chicago Landmark Designation and reuse of the Century and Consumers Buildings.

Sincerely,

Ward Miller

Dear Commission on Chicago Landmarks,

RE: April 13th Meeting Agenda Items 4 & 5 concerning Preliminary Landmark Recommendation of the Century and Consumers Buildings at 202 and 220 S. State Street

The Chicago Collaborative Archive Center (CCAC) asks the Commission on Chicago Landmarks to grant Preliminary Landmark to both the Century and Consumers Buildings.

*This statement and supporting documents are submitted as public comment for these buildings.

202 South State Street, known as the Century Building (BUILDING ON RIGHT) by Holabird & Roche, is a 16-story steel-framed commercial style building completed in 1915. 220 South State Street, known as the Consumer's Building (BUILDING ON LEFT) by Jenney, Mundie & Jensen, completed in 1913, is a 22-story steel super structure on 38 substantial caissons, eight feet in diameter driven down 120 feet. It must be noted, William Le Baron Jenney was "the father of the skyscraper".

These two remarkable buildings were once principally occupied by small businesses, attorney offices and showrooms. Due to their proximity to the courthouse and courtrooms in the adjacent federal courthouse, the General Services Administration (GSA) exercised its power of eminent domain in 2005 to take control of these State Street buildings based on increased security fears following the events of September 11, 2001. Since that acquisition by the GSA, the buildings have been deteriorating due to deferred maintenance and vacancy.

Preservation Chicago along with other preservation partners have previously provided powerful testimony at the Commission on Chicago Landmarks hearing in support of the Century and Consumers Buildings. This represents the culmination of an intensive campaign to save these important buildings from demolition by securing the strong support of the public and City of Chicago. The campaign included a Chicago 7 Most Endangered designation, dozens of media stories detailing the history, circumstances, threat, and alternatives, and the Chicago Collaborative Archive Center press conference.

The Century and Consumers buildings are part of Chicago’s architectural legacy. Ludwig Mies van der Rohe designed the Chicago Federal Center, including the Dirksen Courthouse with the built environment in mind, this included the Century and Consumers built by his predecessors. In relation to these buildings are two features which contribute to the original and ongoing importance of the State Street and Quincy Court original entrance area. First is the Sol LeWitt public art wall piece facing the Dirksen entrance on Quincy that the GSA commissioned. The blank wall facing the Dirksen Building was thought a suitable place for a large art piece, and Sol LeWitt was the chosen artist. Officially located at 10 W. Jackson, the work is titled Lines in Four Directions and dates from 1976. It is hardly ever noticed now because of the re-configuration of the State Street and Quincy Court entrance. Secondly, at ground level between the Dirksen Building and Century Building stand a couple of tan brick and steel I-beam walls hiding utility equipment. These walls are superbly proportioned to the perfectly spaced mortar and bricks in the Mies style of the 1960s to 1990s. These are the only such walls in the Loop and are totally unknown because of the security complexities that protect them.

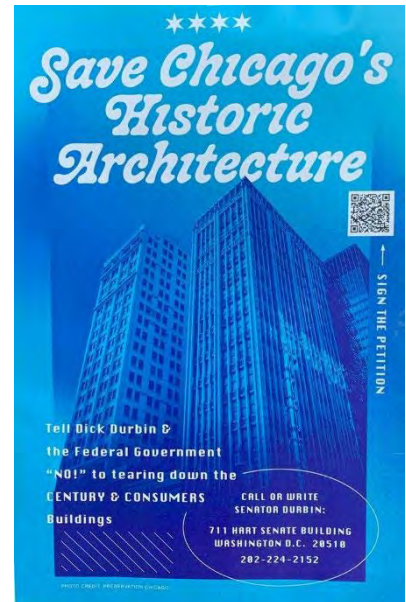

In 2017, leading members of Chicago’s architecture and preservation community united to nominate nine “Early Chicago Skyscrapers,” in downtown Chicago to become a UNESCO World Heritage site. The list originally included additional important buildings for this esteemed honor, but lacking owner consent, were passed over for inclusion in this initial grouping. It noted at the time of the nomination that additional buildings would likely be added in the future, including a number of Chicago School of Architecture/Chicago Commercial Style buildings. The Century and Consumers Buildings are strong candidates to include in the “Early Chicago Skyscrapers” UNESCO World Heritage site in the future. Jan C.K. Anderson of US/ICOMOS informed Preservation Chicago that the potential demolition of the Century and Consumers Buildings would almost certainly disqualify Chicago from achieving the distinguished honor, joining historic structures on the world stage. The potential loss of the “Early Chicago Skyscrapers” as a UNESCO World Heritage site would result in the loss of tens-of-thousands of heritage tourists and millions of dollars to the Chicago and region's economy each year. This would be a tremendous and unfortunate loss on so many levels to include future economic potential for the city through tourism and potential revitalization projects through historic and cultural avenues.

Demolition of these buildings would be a dis-service to the history of Chicago Architecture, loss to the downtown economy, and future positive endeavors. There are also environmental impacts and landfill issues related to the potential demolition of these buildings.

The community has expressed concern, which is evidenced in extensive media coverage. There have been at least twenty-five articles published concerning these buildings within this year alone. A Change.org petition which has garnered over 23,500 signatures and a ten-minute B1M video produced in London, England by B1M, released July 13, 2022, has been viewed by over 1,234,875 individuals. (See the below list of Attachments for accumulated media links.) Locally, an independent group interested in Chicago architecture has also been posting notices throughout the city encouraging the public to write letters to Senator Dick Durbin and sign the Change.org petitions. (See image on the right.)

The CCAC is offering a vision for a positive alternative that would restore the existing buildings and meet the federal security needs.

Collaborative archives are a way to efficiently combine historical collections. Several groups and individuals have been discussing the development of an innovative multi-faceted archival center in downtown Chicago since the summer of 2020. These Include: Preservation Chicago, Archival Resources for Catholic Collections, Dominican University's Mary Nona McGreal Center, and religious archivists from several congregations. The Century and Consumers Buildings have been vacant for about two decades due to their proximity to the Dirksen Federal Court building. Proposals for residential use or commercial development of this site has been prohibited due to the need of maintaining a secure perimeter for the federal complex. The four buildings (202-220 S. State St.) would serve the purpose of an archival center very well and meet the security needs for the courthouse. Ward Miller, Director of Preservation Chicago has discussed the matter with the City of Chicago, and they appear to be receptive to developing these buildings into an archives center. The Franciscan Central Archive and Order of Franciscan Minor – 6 USA Provinces are two archival groups interested in being part members of this collaborative archive. The CCAC vision is to develop this property into an archive center open to all. December 10, 2021 was the initial discussion with presentations for interested parties.

The CCAC Board of Directors consists of Ward Miller, Director of Preservation Chicago; Malachy McCarthy, past Province Archivist of the Claretian Missionaries Archives United States-Canada, and Coordinator of the Archival Resources for Catholic Collections (ARCC); Christopher Allison, Director of the Mary Nona McGreal Center for Dominican Studies at Dominican University; Sister

Mary Navarre OP, Director of Archives of the Dominican Sisters of Grand Rapids; and Holly Fiedler, Archivist for the Sisters of St. Francis of Penance and Christian Charity Sacred Heart Community and member of the Franciscan Central Archive (FCA) Working Group. The CCAC is incorporated as a nonprofit through the State of Illinois and in the process of filing the 501(c)3, drafting bylaws, as well business and strategic plans.

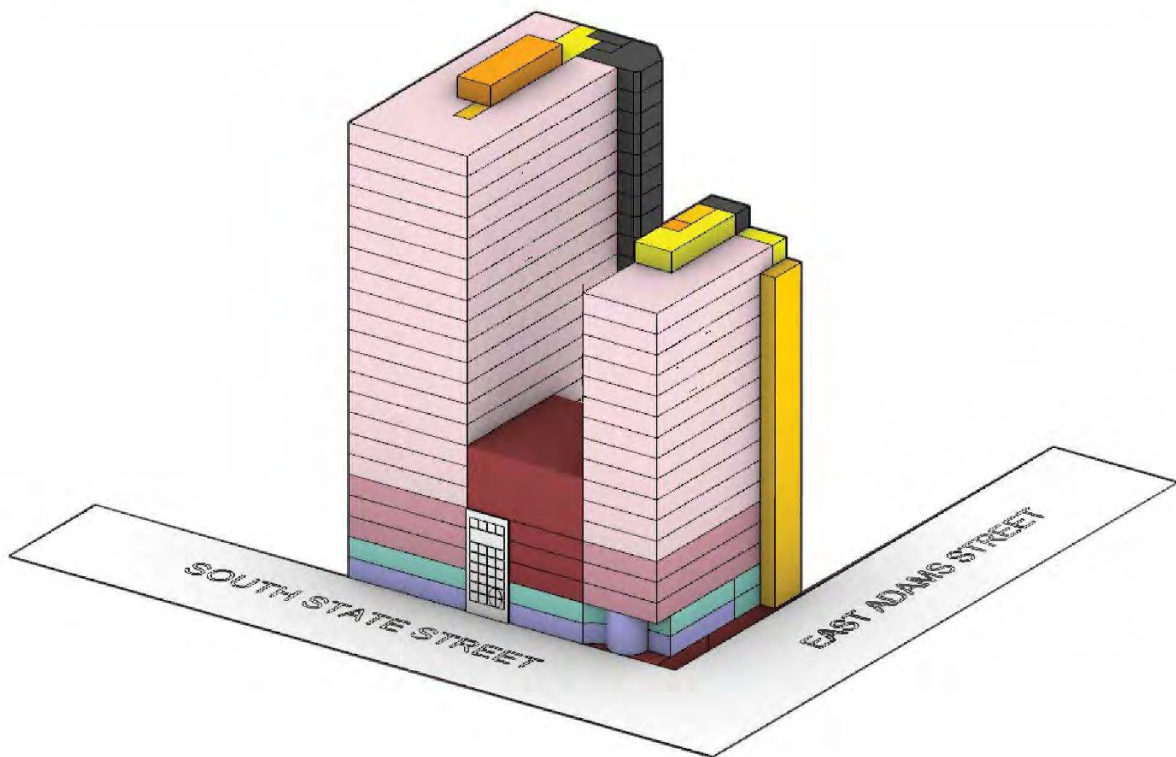

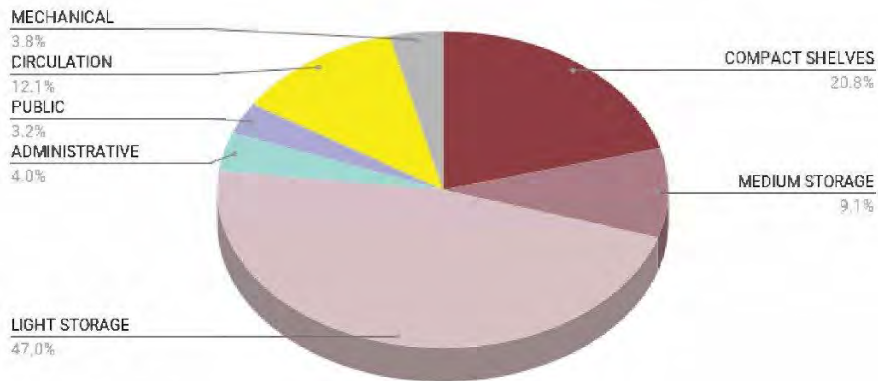

The CCAC mission statement: The Chicago Collaborative Archive Center (CCAC) is an organization committed to identify and purchase building(s) to create a collaborative archive in the Chicago area. The CACC Board would be responsible for managing, ensuring integrity, and safeguarding the operation in perpetuity. This shared archival facility creates an economy of scale, professional interaction, and central repository for scholars. The urgency of this critical need is underscored by the closure and/or merger of many religious communities and other associations.

The CCAC is proposing a national archive center that would employ archival standards to preserve unique and irreplaceable collections. Structurally, archival storage would be assigned the largest area of the buildings. Requiring limited light and 24-hour climate-control, it is desired for storage to have a closed environment. This allows for the west walls facing the Federal Center to be sealed as necessary. Any windows of concern from the Quincy Court elevation façade could be sealed from the interior. This would retain the look and appearance of the buildings, especially the Consumers Building, from the street. In addition to the religious archives being proposed, the CCAC is reaching out to civic archive centers who may have a need for space in these remarkable buildings.

Similar to the GSA, security is of the highest concern to the members of the CCAC partnership whose collections contain unique and irreplaceable documents. We believe that a limited vetted staff, perhaps 20 to 30 people, would be at the site and coordinate a central reading room for the structure. Each visitor would make a reservation, pass security checks, and be escorted up to individually locked floors and collections, via elevator. The CCAC buildings would require multi-layer access control, security personnel, surveillance security systems, scaled zones of security throughout the buildings, security policies, incident response plan, as well as limited staff with board approval and security clearances. The CCAC is committed to working with the GSA to find the best possible security for the site. We would also welcome the GSA as a partner and, if desired, the GSA could have a security center located in the base of the Consumers Building, perhaps occupying much of the first floor fronting Quincy Court. This would help to ensure that both the collections as well as the nearby Chicago Federal Center are secure at all times.

The CCAC has been taking steps to understand what would be necessary to preserve and transform these buildings into an archive center. Over the winter and spring, the CCAC has held meetings with architects, engineers, and interested parties. Meg Kindelin, President of Johnson Lasky Kindelin, JKL Architects has been an active participant and cheerleader of this vision. Her company has the most current and accurate plans for the Century and Consumers' Building (202 and 220 S. State Street) and have been working with the GSA over the past several years. Of note, one of their more recent clients has been the University of Illinois for their rare book collections and archives. She introduced the CCAC to engineers that have expertise with historic buildings within Chicago and have spoken to the CCAC of possible factors and concerns.

With a project such as this, it is important to mention some of the advocacy efforts of the CCAC that have occurred from 2022 to the present. Ward Miller has had multiple conversations and emails with state and city officials. Mary Navarre, OP spoke at her Leadership Conference of Women Religious (LCWR) Region VII 2022 meeting of the CCAC developments. Malachy McCarthy and Chris Allison held conversations with interested parties at the 12th Triennial Conference on the History of Women Religious at the end of June 2022. July 20, 2022, Malachy McCarthy spoke to Dominican communities. He also has had discussions with Sister Sue Durkin, OSU, of the WRAC (Women Religious Archive Collaborative, Cleveland, Ohio) and Hilton Foundation as well as with Sister Ginger Downey, OLVN, of the HARC (Heritage and Research Center at Saint Mary's College, Indiana). This has led to shared presentations, and a September 2022 publication of an article for the Society of American Archivists (SAA) Outlook concerning collaborative archives. Shortly an article will be coming out from the Archivists for Congregations of Women Religious (ACWR) Newsletter highlighting the CCAC. In June, members of the CCAC board will be speaking at the Association of Canadian Archivists conference. All members of the CCAC have given various presentations and held meetings over the past two years. (See the below list of Attachments for SAA Outlook article.)

The members of the CCAC are making plans to solicit initial funds towards the endeavor as well as partners and investors. The CCAC will also be securing funds from foundations through grants, this will include the Hilton and Lily Foundations. The CCAC intends to apply for a planning grant which could include business and strategic planning, assessment of how to assist moving collections to the center, assisting communities and collaboratives in jeopardy, and creation of a website. A second grant for implementation would help facilitate the creation of an endowment, hiring a firm to create a communications plan and initiate a capital campaign. Shortly following this the CCAC will initiate a development department that can continue programming, fundraising, etc.

It is also worth noting that the CCAC has made contact with a foundation which has an associated archive needing a new home with local roots in Chicago and would also be a future investor. This is very exciting and the CCAC would be fortunate to have this archive be part of its collaborative repository.

The CCAC has met with a tax attorney to discuss the Century and Consumers buildings (202 and 220 S. State St.) and how historic tax credits work at both the federal and state as well as with 501(c)3 nonprofit. This attorney has experience with past projects, including with JLK Architects, the state historic preservation office, and GSA, etc. The Century and Consumers buildings would qualify for federal historic tax credits. It is believed that this attorney would be an asset in this endeavor and partner well with JLK Architects.

In the beginning of 2022, the CCAC became aware of a federal infrastructure bill, passed by Congress in March 2022, which include $52 million for the demolition of the Century and Consumers buildings.

March 9, 2022, Preservation Chicago announced the Century and Consumers buildings as their top candidate for the Chicago Seven Most Endangered Buildings. These buildings have been part of Preservation Chicago's most endangered list since 2011.

March 29, 2022, the City of Chicago, Department of Planning and Development, Program Committee of the Commission on Chicago Landmarks held a virtual meeting to receive requests for Chicago Landmark designations. Ward Miller, Director of Preservation Chicago, and member of the CCAC Working Group, presented the Century and Consumers buildings (202 and 220 S. State St.) for consideration. Malachy McCarthy, Coordinator of the ARCC and member of the CCAC Working Group, as well as Holly Fiedler, member of the FCA and CCAC, spoke in support for the Chicago Landmark designation.

March 31, 2022, Landmarks Illinois, Preservation Chicago, and the National Trust for Historic Preservation sent a joint letter to the federal administration calling on the agency to preserve the buildings. Communications have been sent back and forth with the inclusion of other constituents.

April 20, 2022, Landmarks Illinois announced the Century and Consumers building as their 2022 most endangered in Illinois.

May 4, 2022, the CCAC sent an email to Regina Nally and Robert Theel of the GSA, Subject: 202 and 220 S. State St. – Century and Consumers Buildings, concerning the proposed vision of the CCAC. This started correspondence between the GSA and CCAC.

May 18, 2022, the CCAC held a press conference in Chicago. Malachy McCarthy gave introductions and spoke on religious archives, as well as consolidated and collaborative archives. Ward Miller spoke on the history and importance of the buildings and steps being taken by Preservation Chicago and others to save the buildings. Meg Kindelin, President of Johnson Lasky Kindelin (JKL) Architects spoke of her review of the buildings and potential use plans. Holly Fiedler presented the Franciscan Central Archive (FCA) Initiative as an example of a religious archive endeavor and benefits seen to be part of the CCAC. Chris Allison spoke of the urgency of religious communities to find an archival repository for their collections as they reach completion of their congregation within the next few years. All agree that this is most feasible through a collaborative archive center. (See the below list of Attachments for links related to the press conference.)

July 7, 2022, the Commission on Chicago Landmarks held a meeting. The above mentioned spoke in support of preliminary landmark status for the buildings. Evidence was submitted to Chicago Landmarks in support of the Century and Consumers buildings. It can be found by following this link for the Commission on Chicago Landmarks, July Comments:
https://www.chicago.gov/city/en/depts/dcd/supp_info/landmarks_commission.html

In ongoing correspondence with the GSA, the CCAC sent an email and mailed hardcopy to Regina Nally and Robert Theel of the GSA on July 18, 2022. In that letter the CCAC asked to be part of upcoming meetings concerning the buildings, our desire to participate for formal consideration, and reaffirmed our commitment to work with the GSA.

September 8, 2022, Chicago Landmarks recommended both buildings for preliminary landmark status. A presentation on the buildings was given and it was recommended that a report and/or statement be created.

The CCAC has had further communications with GSA, federal and local officials. The result of which have been two previous meetings at the Dirksen U. S. Courthouse with federal representatives, members of the CCAC, as well as Joe Mulligan on September 12 and October 25, 2022. These meetings discussed the security, integrity, and historic value of the buildings; perceived and preferred limitations on the buildings; viable options and partners; as well as the CCAC vision to use the buildings for an archival center.

The CCAC was able to review two reports of 202 and 220 S. State St. concerning the terracotta facades, dated February 23, 2022. Each report had a section dedicated to Temporary Stabilization Repairs, that primarily involved removal of some terracotta, installation of temporary mesh, use of joint sealant and/or mortar as well as plywood. Each report also included extensive Recommendations for repairs. However, there was no supporting evidence of making these repairs.

Currently the buildings are being evaluated and updated structural evaluations are being conducted. Initial review indicates that although the terracotta is in very poor condition, the buildings appear structurally sound.

It is recognized that Congress has appropriated funds for demolition * for all four buildings. According to the GSA [Notice-PBS2-22-06; Docket No. 2022-0002, Sequence No.26], “The funds appropriated by Congress are available only for demolition, securing the site, and landscaping the vacant site following demolition. The proposed action includes protection of adjacent properties during demolition, securing the vacant site of the demolished buildings and landscaping of the vacant site following demolition.” Joseph Mulligan had indicated to members of the CCAC that those funds could also be used in the alternative vision for the archives center as any exterior or interior demolition prior to restoration or construction. *The CCAC asks that the language for the appropriated funds be altered to also include “and/or restoration” for all four buildings. It is indicated under National Environmental Policy Act (NEPA) Procedures, Environmental Impact Statements (39 CFR 775.11) that “Proposals for Legislation” are possible.

Members of Board of Directors for the CCAC spoke at the GSA public scoping hearing on November 10, 2022, to include Malachy McCarthy, Holly Fiedler, and Ward Miller. The CCAC would note that additional impact considerations relevant to Chicago Architectural History were emailed by Preservation Chicago as well as historians Rolf Achilles and Kevin Harrington.

These buildings are in desperate need of repair. They have only had the bare minimum, temporary, repairs over the past two decades. Recommendations have been given to address water migration and perform long lasting repairs. These appear to have been ignored. True stabilization should be a priority, especially to the exterior: roof, windows, and terracotta.

Demolition of these buildings would be a dis-service to the history of Chicago Architecture, loss to the downtown economy, and future positive endeavors. It will remove Chicago's nomination of "Early Chicago Skyscrapers" to become a UNESCO World Heritage Center. This is a very significant loss to the city for tourism, which brings money and interest to the city. The Commission on Chicago Landmarks can help prevent demolition by recognizing the historic value of the buildings and granting Preliminary Landmark.

The Chicago Collaborative Archive Center (CCAC) thanks the Commission on Chicago Landmarks for their considerable review of these two buildings: 202 and 220 South State Street, the Century and Consumers Buildings. We ask for you to step up and formally recognize their historic value and help save these buildings by granting Preliminary Landmark status.

Sincerely,

THREE C⊕LLAB⊕RATIONS IN CA+H⊕LIC RELIGI⊕US ARCHIVES

Sr. Ginger Downey, The Heritage and Research Center at Saint Mary's; Sr. Susan Durkin, Women Religious Archives Collaborative; and Malachy McCarthy, Claretian Missionaries USA Canada

Collaborative archives—the practice of several institutions working together to build a repository—provides a means to efficiently support several archival collections, foster professional interaction among archivists, develop a shared set of services, access climate-controlled storage areas, and numerous other benefits to which a solo archives might not have access.

The advantages are immense, and the practice is gaining momentum, perhaps nowhere more so than in the religious realm. Catholic communities and religious orders especially have experienced an increase in the creation of new community archives. Collaboration among repositories is an obvious choice as many of these collections have not been professionally managed. The stories in these archives—primary source documentation on immigrants in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries; rural, urban, and working-class experiences; and the development of educational, medical, and charitable institutions—represent “hidden” collections that can shed light on the varied service of these communities and provide scholars with valuable resources.

Here are three significant and exciting initiatives underway in the religious archives community.

The Heritage and Research Center at Saint Mary's

Catholic congregations face many difficult issues, a significant one being the decline and aging of their membership. This in turn raises the issue of the continued care of their congregational archives. In spring 2018, the Sisters of the Holy Cross in Notre Dame, Indiana, invited archivists and members of leadership from congregations in the Midwest to imagine possible ways that they could care for their archives into the future. The Heritage and Research Center at Saint Mary's (HARC) was the fruit of this dreaming.

HARC is a collaboration of nine congregations working to build one repository to house all their archives. This ensures that after a congregation is no longer able to provide for its archives, there will be archivists to care for it in perpetuity and provide access to those wishing to use the archives for research. In addition, HARC will create an exhibit space to share the history of each congregation. This space will be interactive, with transitional exhibits curated around themes and different aspects of the lives of women religious. The nine congregations are initially supporting this endeavor through endowments, grants, and other funding sources to ensure sustainability. This exciting project will preserve not only the stories of these congregations, but also the broader story of women religious in the United States and beyond.

Women Religious Archives Collaborative

The 2018 Boston Conference entitled “Envisioning the Future of Catholic Religious Archives” inspired twelve congregations of various charisms to form the Women Religious Archives Collaborative (WRAC) in Ohio. WRAC continues to seek out interested congregations to join the collaborative and plans to expand its space to accommodate additional congregations and current and future collection development.

WRAC is in the process of vetting a location for the facility in Northeast Ohio. As a tax-exempt corporation, WRAC has elected a board of directors and appointed an executive director. Several committees have also formed, comprised of religious and lay members with expertise in fund development, communications, design and construction planning, and programming, and each participating congregation has appointed a liaison to the project. WRAC's lead archivist is working with an archivists committee to assess collections and provide support and additional expertise to congregations.

WRAC seeks to provide space for congregational collections and to process and preserve these collections. The collaborative will employ professional archival staff and welcome interns to work with collections. WRAC is beginning work on the legal agreements with congregations and on the policies and procedures for its facility, which will include storage space and display areas for artifacts and a large, dynamic space for presentations and programs.

As congregations have limited resources, WRAC seeks to make the space affordable. Participating congregations have provided initial fundraising support and will include endowment support as a part of their congregational legacy planning. WRAC will utilize grant funding and initiate a capital campaign to construct and endow the space in perpetuity.

The Chicago Collaborative Archive Center

Once again building upon the influential 2018 “Envisioning the Future of Catholic Religious Archives” conference, a group of archivists established the Chicago Collaborative Archive Center (CCAC). Unlike HARC and WRAC, CCAC welcomes archives from male and female Christian: How can archivists develop their visual literacy to better appraise, describe, and provide access to born-digital design records? What other skill sets do archivists need to successfully manage born-digital design records?

Leventhal: Our profession will need to develop digital visual literacy in addition to visual literacy. The former requires a more explicit acknowledgment of and familiarity with tools, the technical functionality of digital tools, and communication of design intent, as well as the expected visual experience. Digital visual literacy requires an awareness of the modern design process and changes in practice and, often, an understanding of the broader economic and technological conditions to contextualize the climate in which the work was being done. For example, a recession could decrease architectural projects, resulting in practitioners not updating their software suite for several years as a costs-saving measure. Or software developed in a related discipline like animation might be adopted by designers making simulated walkthroughs of a proposed design.

Christian: You've contributed both to an SAA book and American Archivist articles. What advice do you have for anyone wishing to write for SAA?

Leventhal: If you see a gap in the literature, do not wait for an invitation. Please write about that missing conversation. Don't be deterred by the timeline from initial draft to publication, which often helps to make the final product better. Ask all the questions you have. It can be an intimidating to get started, but not knowing part of the process shouldn't be the reason to stop helpful observations or innovations from being shared in these publications. ■ congregations, various denominations, and secular and nonreligious archives. Also different from other efforts, the CCAC merges urban historic preservation with archives. The CCAC Working Group envisions its physical center to be managed by a board. Besides offering a shared space in a secure site, CCAC hopes that its center can provide other dedicated services, such as a digitization facility, an oversize storage area for artwork and other archival materials, a conservation center, an exhibit space, an auditorium, and street-level businesses enhancing the CCAC's mission. It would be a one-stop shop where congregational members could have specialized tasks done at a reduced rate with the same services offered to the general public at a higher fee to generate revenue and help sustain CCAC.

Assisted by the executive director of Preservation Chicago, CCAC is searching for suitable properties and is considering a building in the downtown area adjacent to several university and college campuses, which would facilitate interaction with academic institutions, and near a variety of transportation hubs, which would provide easy staff and user access. The building would be renovated to comply with archival standards for climate-controlled storage.

CCAC is still very much in its formative stage. The Working Group is in the process of filing Articles of Incorporation as a nonprofit with the State of Illinois, then will file for 501(c)(3) status. Members are also in discussions to form a Board of Directors and draft bylaws. Implementation grants, capital campaign, and future endowments will be paramount to CCAC's success. Regardless if this specific physical site proceeds, the CCAC Working Group is committed to establishing some type of collaborative archives within Chicago.

Starting with a Clear Plan

All three of these initiatives face the challenge of long-term sustainability, not just for the many collections they house but for the collaborative itself. It is imperative that a collaborative archives has a strong board to manage the facility and a clear development program to implement immediately. In addition to managing each collective's current collections, the board must be ready to grow to take on the completed collections from additional community archives.

Another initial challenge is for the collaborative archives to establish a minimum level of archival processing. This will allow the collaborative to understand incoming collections and to improve the collection's description and access.

Each of these centers needs to develop clear policies outlining the responsibilities of all parties. For example, will a new collection be managed by its own archival staff, or will the center establish a team of professionals to manage the collection?

With these considerations in mind, collaborative archives offer an innovative approach for organizations and communities with uncertain futures. By merging archival collections, small- and medium-size archives can obtain services that might otherwise be out of reach. Combining the efforts of participating members and a board to oversee, fund, and protect the collaborative, professional archivists can manage collections, employ shared IT professionals, initiate archival cloud storage, and launch a communal content management system. A shared website with portals to digitized collections and finding aids encourages researchers to access these valuable collections more readily. Ultimately, the benefits of collaboration mean that the stories and service of these small religious orders and communities—much of which has shaped our broader national history—will be preserved for future generations. ■

CCAC

Chicago Collaborative Archive Center

Preservation Chicago, Dominican University, and members of the Archival Resources for Religious Collections are exploring a sustainable multi-repository archive center in the downtown South Loop. The Chicago Collaborative Archive Center (CCAC) would house collections from various groups providing preservation in perpetuity. The CCAC would have a Board of Directors and operate under a 501(c)(3). At the moment, the CCAC has interest from the following archival groups:

- Franciscan Central Archives
- Order of Franciscan Minor, 6 USA provinces
- McGreal Center for Dominican Historical Studies

These two remarkable buildings, the 16-story Century Building by Holabird & Roche (1915) and the 22-story Consumers Building by Jenney, Mundie & Jensen (1913), were once principally occupied by small businesses, attorney offices and showrooms. Due to their proximity to the courthouse and courtrooms in the adjacent federal courthouse, the General Services Administration (GSA) exercised its power of eminent domain in 2005 to take control of these State Street buildings based on increased security fears following the events of September 11, 2001. Since that acquisition by the GSA, the buildings have been stable but slowly deteriorating due to deferred maintenance and vacancy.

Both Preservation Chicago and Landmarks Illinois listed the buildings on their most endangered lists in 2022 and in previous years. The federal government has budgeted a $52 million expenditure in the Federal Infrastructure Bill, currently before Congress, specifically for the demolition of the Century and Consumers Buildings. The decades-long advocacy efforts to save these significant buildings is therefore reaching a critical stage. “We are building great momentum on a plan for reuse for these extraordinary buildings,” said Ward Miller, Executive Director of Preservation Chicago. “Our challenge now is to stop the federal wheels of demolition motion and steer toward a viable reuse.”

The CCAC is proposing a national archive center that would employ archival standards to preserve unique and irreplaceable collections. Structurally, archival storage would be assigned the largest area of the buildings. Requiring limited light and a 24-hour climate-controlled environment, it is desired for storage to have a closed environment. This allows for the west walls facing the Federal Center to be sealed from the interior-side of the structures. This would retain the look and appearance of the buildings, especially the Consumers Building, from the street. The collaborative is also encouraging the GSA/Federal Government to partner on this effort, perhaps by continuing to own the exterior skin: walls, terra cotta, and windows of the buildings. Such a plan would allow the GSA to exercise total control of the perimeter and the windows, including those that need to be permanently blocked from the interior side on principal elevations. In addition to the religious archives being proposed, the collaborative is reaching out to civic archive centers who may have a need for space in these remarkable buildings.

This vision has been brought together by the CCAC as well as Ward Miller, Executive Director of Preservation Chicago; JLK Architects, a Chicago woman-owned architectural firm led by Meg Kindelin that has collaborated with the GSA; and Thornton Tomasetti, a structural engineering firm with extensive experience in adaptive reuse projects of historic skyscrapers with this type of age and construction. Together we have had multiple meetings to review and discuss architectural and structural possibilities.

The goal would be to have the archive center operational within 5 years. Costs are a challenge. The CCAC would apply for a planning grant which could include business and strategic planning, assessment of how to assist moving collections to the center, assisting communities and collaboratives in jeopardy, and creation of a website. Then CCAC would apply for an implementation grant to help facilitate the creation of an endowment, as well as hiring a firm to create a communications plan and capital campaign. The CCAC would be taking advantage of federal tax credits.

“There is strength in a collaborative archive. The value of the individual collections within such a repository are increased by the presence of the others,” said Holly Fiedler, Province Archivist, Sisters of St. Francis, Sacred Heart Province. “There are certainly many challenges in making this vision a reality, but we are taking actionable steps forward to achieve the ultimate goal.”

The various archives that would use this building would share staffing and leasing costs. Security would be paramount in this endeavor. The Center would have less than 30 employees and visitors would require reservations. The buildings would require multi-layer access control, surveillance security systems, and scaled zones of security throughout with each floor being locked and secured. There is proposed a central research room, perhaps on the first or second floor. The security team would be at the base entry to the building.

Classrooms, lecture hall, and exhibit space would be on the lower levels, face State and Adams Streets with fixed hours, and have appropriate security monitoring. Possible commercial space could be in the Century building, facing State and Adams Streets, and be on the ground floor with fixed hours of operation.

“A collaborative archive of this proposed size is rare in the country,” said Christopher Allison, a historian and Director of the McGreal Center at Dominican University. “It would become a major hub for archive-based research, and would consolidate precious sources in one space.” Allison also said that it would add to the rich educational resources of the Loop. “Our Graduate School of Information Studies could be a productive presence in the building, providing not only classes but also hands-on internships and employment for future professionals.” There are multiple other universities within the downtown area who would find value in the CCAC through research, program development, and other opportunities.

“As members of the collaborative keep exploring this archives option, we are even more convinced this is the best solution – both for the city and these buildings,” said Malachy McCarthy, Province Archivist for the Claretian Missionaries Archives USA-Canada. “It fulfills the security needs of the central government, and it could be a home for historic archive collections with no place to go.”

The creation of a collaborative archive in the heart of downtown enhances Chicago’s reputation as a learning and resource center. The Society of American Archivists and the American Library Association are headquartered in Chicago. The city’s academic institutions and the welcoming of outside scholars have made Chicago one of the most documented cities in the United States. The CCAC provides the city and region a unique opportunity to create a new research center model where scholars could find a multiplicity of collections in one block, with a short elevator ride the only barrier in the broadening of our understanding of the world.

Dear Mr. Mulligan,

Others will write to you about the preservation of the historically and culturally significant buildings on State Street, namely the Century and Consumer's Buildings. Some will assure you that a function exists for these buildings that would insure rather than jeopardize the security of the Durkin Federal Building nearby through vetted access and tight security measures. I am asking for a moment of your time to describe an urgent need that aligns perfectly with the strengths of these two grand buildings.

I am Sr. Mary Navarre, a Grand Rapids, Michigan Dominican Sister who, like thousands of other sisters, will soon be seeking a secure space to preserve the priceless documents contained in our archives. These collections hold the remarkable story of two centuries of American women who provided education, health care and social services to the nation's children at a time when the influx of immigrants from Europe and other areas of the world were overwhelming.

This is about American history and women's history. It is the story of education, health care and social service in the United States. Many congregations of women religious are prepared to leave a trust fund to sustain their archives in perpetuity. Others will need to secure grants to do so. It is a work in progress across the nation from the east coast to the west coast.

Preserving our collections is just about a perfect fit with the use of these buildings so that current and future scholars, genealogists, and historians will have a site in the Midwest to tell the remarkable and true story. Distortions abound in films, movies, novels, and TV serials. Few know the real story, yet thousands lived it. We must not lose it through negligence or apathy.

Chicago is an ideal location as it is a hub of intellectual and cultural heritage centers, universities, museums, and institutions. As well, it is accessible to researchers via airports, highways, and rail.

Time flies, even centuries fly by quickly. Where will our stories be held safely for future generations? East coast, west coast and Midwest sites are developing. Chicago needs to be in the mix as a major hub securing our treasures along with many others in two beautiful skyscrapers, carefully restored and shining brightly on State Street right in the Loop of Chicago.

Your approval to designate the Century and Consumers buildings as landmarks would further the cause of the preservation of these archives benefitting research and understanding for years to come.

Sincerely,
Sr. Mary Navarre

4/13 Meeting Public Comment: Century and Consumers Buildings

Thomas Weber <thomas.patrick.weber@gmail.com>

Hello,

I am submitting written public commentary in advance of Thursday's meeting to advocate for landmark status on the Century and Consumers buildings. My strong support for landmark status is due to:

1. Both skyscrapers are architecturally significant, early 20th century skyscrapers that contribute to the Loop Historic District and greatly enhance the streetwall of State Street. As a society we should apply lessons learned from architectural and urban planning mistakes in the past half century instead of allowing them to repeat in the future.
2. There are already an abundant number of underutilized public plazas within walking distance of this site such as Pritzker Park, Federal Plaza, Chase Plaza, and Daley Plaza. There is no benefit to the Chicago Loop by having historically significant buildings destroyed to create yet another unnecessary plaza.
3. The current disrepair of the buildings is noted by the Federal Government as a reason for demolition, despite the fact that the disrepair and abandonment is solely due to several decades of purposeful inaction following their eminent domain takeover. Landmark status with the city would help pressure the Federal Government to reallocate the $52 million in demolition funds to help repair the buildings from all of the deferred maintenance the past 18 years.
4. Instead of working to acquire real estate for unnecessary buffer zones, the Federal Government should increase efforts on renovating their buildings to help resolve security concerns through increased window opacity and glass strength if they wish to maintain a presence in dense downtown areas. Allowing demolition of these buildings sets a dangerous precedent in the future for other nearby buildings.
5. As large cities like Chicago cement the future of their downtowns in a post-pandemic world, the Federal government needs to be a partner advocating for innovation and reuse of our Loop Historic District buildings instead of demolition that hurts overall density, street life, and economic recovery.

6. The city of Chicago and the Federal Government failed to be good partners during the CA Ventures residential proposal for the buildings several years ago, and the same mistakes should not be repeated with other reuse proposals such as the Chicago Collaborative Archive's Center. Reuse is absolutely possible for these buildings.

I sincerely hope the CCL helps show the Federal Government how much Chicago cherishes our historic architecture by moving forward with preliminary landmark protection on April 13th.

Thank you

Testimony before the Commission on Chicago Landmarks
by Dirk Lohan, FAIA
April 13, 2023

I am submitting these comments to you today in my capacity as a long-time architect in Chicago who worked on the original design of the Dirksen Federal Building in the 1960's with the architect Mies van der Rohe who also was my grandfather. As such I am representing the Mies van der Rohe Society which advocates today to landmark the Century Building and the Consumers Building, both located along State Street on the same block that houses the Dirksen Federal Building. These two early skyscrapers are fine examples of Chicago's architectural heritage and should be landmarked to give them the protection they deserve.

These two buildings belong into the league of the Reliance, Monadnock and Marquette buildings. At the time of the design of the Federal Center they were successfully occupied and were carefully respected by Mies van der Rohe as part of the urban composition he developed between Adams and Jackson. Later they were acquired by the Federal Government and were left unoccupied without any meaningful maintenance. Today they are neglected and deteriorating to the point that the State Street sidewalk must be fenced to protect the public from being hit by falling façade elements.

The current condition of these buildings is of deep concern and the suggestion to tear them down is a disgrace and insult to the proud history of Chicago's architectural significance. They should be landmarked and the GSA, as the owner, should not be allowed to tear them down. Instead, a qualified and experienced architectural team should be commissioned to develop an urbanistic plan which will integrate the eastern half of the property behind the Dirksen building as an integral and aesthetically attractive solution for the entire block between Dearborn and State Streets.

With my sincerest wishes for a meaningful and responsible decision for our great City,

Dirk Lohan, FAIA

Dear Members of the Commission,

re – Preliminary designations of the Century and Consumers Buildings, 202 & 220 S State St, Chicago

As I am attending the Society of Architectural Historians Annual Meeting in Montreal this week I hope you will accept this letter as the expert testimony I would otherwise offer in person at your meeting on 13 April 2023.

The excellence of the architecture of these two buildings is already well acknowledged by its presence on the National Register of Historic Places as part of the Loop Retail Historic District. If these buildings were restored as well and carefully as the National Historic Landmark Carson Pirie Scott, Marquette, Reliance, and Rookery buildings, they would join that distinguished list of nationally recognized excellence. Designation would also enhance the reputation of Chicago's Loop as the finest assemblage of steel framed tall buildings in the world. Their loss would be a wound to our shared heritage equivalent to the destruction of the Schiller Theatre and Chicago Stock Exchange buildings.

It is also important to recognize the importance of these buildings to the urban design and formal expression of the Federal Center designed by Ludwig Mies van der Rohe, 1886-1969, and others, beginning in the late 1950s.

Mies's City Planning at the Federal Center

Ludwig Mies van der Rohe began addressing city planning in Chicago in the late 1930s when he started developing plans for the Illinois Institute of Technology in Bronzeville in the near southside. After the war his Promontory Apartments in Hyde Park and 860-880 North Du Sable Lake Shore Drive Apartments established his responsiveness to the lake and the city it framed.

In the Loop another comprehensive plan is currently under threat at Mies's Federal Center. At first glance, the Federal Center might seem a plaza surrounded by a court house, an office building and a post office. Mies's own site plan from 1959 shows the present configuration of the federal buildings. In addition it also shows both city blocks where the Century and Consumers buildings are located - the full blocks bounded north and south by Adams and Jackson streets, and west to east by Clark, Dearborn and State streets. The existing buildings on State Street are indicated as well as the buildings on Adams Street occupied then and now by the Berghoff Restaurant. In addition, Mies uses the buildings on either side of Quincy Street, which begins heading west at State Street, to frame and lead to the transparent ground level entrance to the Court House and the plaza beyond with Calder's Flamingo clearly visible. This direct and significant view serves to link the retail life of State Street to the presence of the federal government just beyond. The Century and Consumers buildings are among the finest of the early Chicago School skyscrapers whose framing and expression are repeated in the structure and facades of Mies's buildings.

In addition, the curtain walls of the Century and Consumers buildings relate to the nearby curtain walls of the Court House. For the Century Building this is along Adams Street, relating to the north elevation of the Court House, and for the Consumers Building it is along Quincy Court, relating to the east elevation of the Court House. The curtain walls of many Chicago School skyscrapers, among them the Reliance Building, the Marquette Building, the Fisher Building, the Old Colony Building, and the Manhattan Building demonstrate the rich possibilities of expression for the enclosure of steel framed buildings. Mies's Federal Center is a mid-twentieth century expression of these same ideas that have made the city's great architecture similar to the associations we make with Vienna for music, Paris for art, and London for theater.

From the west, the Concourse of Union Station once provided a view from its majestic windows eastward along Quincy Street to the Federal Building by Henry Ives Cobb, crowned by its dome in the center of the block. Because the concourse was destroyed long after Mies's arrival in Chicago, he may very well have had this visual experience as he used the train station – his preferred mode of long distance travel. Now, the east facing axis along narrow Quincy Street begins at Franklin, past the Federal Reserve Bank and the Rookery to Alexander Calder's Flamingo, near enough to the center of the Federal Center block, that it provides a ground level dome like form recalling the dome of the earlier court house. Today we have the opportunity to preserve the framing of the Federal Center from east and west by retaining the Century and Consumers buildings on State Street, linking the retail of State Street with the Governmental presence in the Federal Center to the banking and trading presence on LaSalle Street.

The preservation of this complex interrelation of multiple institutions at the center of a great city provides us all with a physical manifestation of these elements, to which Mies provided an enhanced, meaningful and significant connection. All of Chicago as well as the Federal Center need this relation among the elements of plan and elevation to understand the sympathetic and powerful conversation of elements developed over time.

Sincerely,

Kevin Harrington

RE: April 13th Meeting Agenda Items 4&5 concerning Preliminary Landmark Recommendation of the Century and Consumers Building at 202 and 220 South State Street.

Dear Commission on Chicago Landmarks,

As a member of the Chicago Collaborative Archive Center (CCAC) working group, I urge the Commission on Chicago Landmarks to designate the Century and Consumers Building as a preliminary landmark. Throughout the CCAC working group discussions, we believe that the repurposing of the buildings as an archive center would incorporate two primary goals of historic preservation, the protection of two significant representations of the Chicago School of Architecture: the Consumers Building (Jenny, Mundie and Jensen, 1913) and the Century Building (Holabird & Roche, 1915) and the creation of a collaborative archive center which would preserve the records of diverse repositories which reveal an alternative narrative of the city and region's history.

Today there is passionate discussion surrounding the term equity. However, one of the ways we can understand this history is through primary sources, the records found in archive repositories. By establishing a collaborative archive center in these historic buildings, we are committed to give a voice to those people and organizations marginalized by society. By providing a collaborative and reasonably priced archive center, we hope that we can attract archives that reflect the diverse collections found in Chicagoland. Through this collaborative approach, the tenants of the CCAC can provide guidance to one another in preserving these valuable collections and offer a state of the art environment and services that would make these records open to scholars and the general public.

Located in the South Loop and in the heart of an academic center, the CCAC would provide a new resource for scholars writing about Chicago as well as provide a center for training future informational professionals. Its proximity to public transportation makes the CCAC a welcome addition to this vibrant neighborhood.

In closing, I urge you to approve the preliminary landmark designation of the Century and Consumers buildings which could lead to this innovative use of creating an archive center for overlooked and underused archive collections.

Sincerely

Commission on Chicago Landmarks
121 N. LaSalle St., 10th Floor.
Chicago, IL 60602

Dear Commission Members,

I am writing to advocate for Chicago Landmark Status for the Century and Consumers Buildings on 220 South State Street. As you know well, this building has been slated for demolition in the recent infrastructure bill. But I believe this to a mistake. I hope the Commission will afford this important building of the “Chicago School” of architecture for Landmark Status. Its central location has shaped the built environment around it, including the Mies van der Rohe’s federal center behind it. Its demolition would radically change this important block in Chicago, and create additional security issues at the Federal Court House. Furthermore, it is one of many landmark buildings that tell the story of Chicago’s central role in the development of skyscrapers in American architectural history. Our city is rightly proud of our architectural legacy, and it draws people across the world to visit these iconic buildings.

A landmark status can pave the way for reuse, especially for non-profits in the city center. As a historian of material culture and built environment, I am certain that such a historic building is in the public, cultural, and historical interest to remain intact. While it may need renovations to its terra cotta exterior, the GSA is responsible for its upkeep, and has promised to do so. I am also an administrator in Chicagoland’s only accredited School of Information Studies, which trains librarians, archivists, and other information professionals, we see this building as a potentially vibrant center of learning, for our university and the region. If a collaborative archive were to reside in the building, blocking off the back windows for security for the Federal Center, there is an exciting opportunity that would serve the city and the country. This is the vision set by the Chicago Collaborative Archives Center (CCAC), of which I am a founding board member. There is no university in the nation that has such a rich archival center embedded within a graduate school devoted to its use. The opportunity here is akin to putting a business school in the heart of Wall Street in New York City. The American Library Association, the MacArthur Foundation, the Art Institute of Chicago, the Terra Foundation, the Society of American Archivists, and the Newberry Library, to name a few local cultural institutions, all would be enhanced by such a site, if only for storage. Chicago is an ideal location, and the State Street properties are easily accessible, for those outside the region, via plane and train. Our University would benefit from having a presence in the building, to enhance our graduate level offerings to care for the archives of American life, and train future generations of information professionals.

The need is great. Many cultural institutions are in desperate need for care of their records. And if we lost them to the proverbial dumpster we risk much. The histories of iconic magazines, such as Jet, the history of social care, healthcare, community organizations, women, immigrants, and underrepresented populations—their records are in need of care, preservation, and a place to research it all. Landmark status of this building would not only enshrine an important piece of Chicago history, but would also pave the way for the historical preservation of many stakeholders' records and artifacts, as well as creating an additional educational hub in the heart of Chicago.

My very best,

Dr. Christopher Allison

Please reject the federal government's unnecessary meddling in Chicago's architectural history. Federal courthouses all over the country have been built or purchased within view of other buildings. It is unfair for the federal government to specifically select these two buildings.

These buildings are important pieces of Chicago's past and beautiful symbols of our rich architectural history. Please designate these two buildings as Chicago landmarks.

Hello Commission,

A Preliminary Chicago Landmark Designation for the Century and Consumers Buildings this Thursday would send a clear message that the City of Chicago highly values these historic buildings and wants to see them saved and revitalized.

It would be a tragic mistake for $52 million taxpayers dollars to be used to demolish two outstanding Early Chicago Skyscrapers in the heart of historic State Street.

The widely reported Chicago Collaborative Archives Center adaptive reuse plan meets or exceeds all security related issues and stakeholders are motivated to move forward.

Chicago's Early Chicago Skyscrapers are currently being considered as a UNESCO World Heritage Site. But the demolition of the Century and Consumers Buildings could jeopardize this extraordinary designation and international recognition.

Now is the time to landmark these significant Early Chicago Skyscrapers in the heart of Chicago so that they can be restored and once again contribute to the vibrancy of the Loop.

Hello -

Please save the Century & Consumers Buildings by granting preliminary landmark status! Take a look at <https://chicagoyimby.com/> and you'll see that rarely do any new developments compare to what we were able to build a century ago. These buildings add a richness to the downtown cityscape, and we have too many examples of beautiful buildings torn down in this city only to sit vacant for years, creating an urban scar.

Any concerns of "safety" for the court/federal buildings are completely unfounded. If that were the case, none would exist in urban centers! Even if there was merit to these claims, steps could be taken to address them without demolishing the buildings, which is extremely wasteful.

Be better, Chicago.

To whom it may concern:

I am writing to encourage the Commission on Chicago Landmarks to designate the Century & Consumers buildings as preliminary landmarks during the meeting on Thursday, April 13th. I am an 18-year-old who deeply values the preservation of historic buildings. Though I live in Indiana, I have strong family ties to the Chicago area and have great respect for the city's expansive architectural heritage. Many sound arguments have been made for the buildings' architectural and historical significance, and valid proposals have been presented for their reuse. I do not wish to repeat what has already been eloquently said. I simply want to join the many other activists and ordinary citizens who are requesting that the CCL grant these skyscrapers the protection they deserve.

Dear City of Chicago Commission on Chicago Landmarks:

Although I am a resident of Concord, Massachusetts, where a large part of our history focuses on the origin of the American Revolutionary War on April 19, 1775, I am also a frequent visitor to Chicago and a huge fan of Chicago's architectural history. I love it! That is why I am writing to urge your support for a Preliminary Chicago Landmark Designation for both the Century and Consumers Buildings at 202 S. State and 220 S. State, respectively.

We have preservation battles all the time in Concord, MA and Boston, MA, too. Good afternoon,

I am submitting public commentary for Thursday's meeting to advocate for landmark status on the Century and Consumers buildings. My support for landmark status is due to:

[1. The Century and Consumers buildings are architecturally significant, early 20th century skyscrapers that contribute to the Loop Historic District and greatly enhance the streetwall of State Street. There are already an abundant number of underutilized public spaces within walking distance of this site such as Britton Park, Federal Plaza, Chase Plaza, and Deloy Plaza. Hello,

I'm reaching out to ask that the Commission grant the Century and Consumer buildings landmark status. Adaptive reuses which address the existing security concerns are possible. The impact of their demolition would be a significant loss to the Loop streetscape, and Chicago's architectural legacy as a whole. These are historic buildings in a historic district, and they ought to be treated as such. Chicago's cultural heritage is worth preserving. The City must act accordingly.

Re: Commission on Chicago Landmarks, Regular Meeting, April 13, 2023

I am writing as a concerned private citizen of Chicago to express urgent and complete support for the designation of the buildings at 202 and 220 S. State St. as Chicago Landmarks that should be saved from the wrecking ball.

As others such as Preservation Chicago have outlined in previous testimonies to the CCL, the buildings can be reconfigured and repurposed for significantly less cost than demolition.

Moreover, the loss of these buildings would cause gaping loss in the historic streetscape and “visual cliff” of South State Street.

Finally, the loss of these buildings would surely embolden a domino effect of demolitions of other adjacent historic buildings such as the building that houses the historic Berghoff.

I thank the commission for considering my position.

These two buildings are great examples of Chicago School skyscrapers, and the Dept of Planning and Development has already determined that these buildings meet the strict criteria and standards for Chicago Landmark Designation. This action cannot be delayed any further because these buildings should not be demolished by the federal government. Demolishing the Century & Consumers buildings would permanently destroy a piece of our architectural heritage, and create an unfillable void on an important retail corridor that is already struggling post-pandemic.

[Warning: External email]

Hello Commission, thank you for accepting written statements at this time.

My name is Pearse Anderson, I am a recent Chicagoan, having moved to the city in August 2020, and have loved the city I moved to. I cannot think that the city would have the same appeal to me, newcomers, or tourists if historic buildings are downed for such reasons as the Century & Consumers buildings. There are a dozen solutions that can help all affected parties before a demolition takes place - I feel like a city that blights itself purposefully, destroying endangered and beautiful buildings, is not one I want to live in. I don't want the Chicago skyline to resemble St. Louis or Rapid City, I want it to feel like Chicago: a city that cares about its centuries of development, urban history, and architectural wonders, and will invest in them. A "security buffer zone" that Durbin called for last year describes the military checkpoints my father grew up around, the warzone edges that geopolitics define, or the hallways of prisons: none of that sounds like a welcoming, warm city. Our buildings exist to house, inspire, and teach us, not just to be destroyed if inconvenient. Please do the right thing and what Chicagoans want: save these buildings and continue the good work of preservation, community revitalization, and listening to those in the street, not just those who fail upwards into power.

Thank you,
-Pearse

Hello! My name is Travis Root, and I'm a Chicagoan urging the city to landmark and protect the Century & Consumers Buildings (202 & 220 S. State) and the Warehouse (206 S. Jefferson).

Chicago is a city defined by experimentation, and these three buildings exemplify that history perfectly:

- The daring structural engineering of the Century Building, standing tall and thin, like a playing card on its side, for over 100 years
- The groundbreaking use of glazed terracotta cladding in the Midwest, used extensively on the Consumers Building in place of stonework, completely redefining the economics of beauty in the public space
- The relentless creativity of Chicago's Black music scene at the Warehouse, leading to the invention of the most popular dance genre in the world, in an unassuming yet timeless building

To demolish any of these historical landmarks, or let them further decay, would be a tragedy for the entire city and region. Chicago deserves to have its history preserved, restored, and kept safe-- the history of a wrought-iron industrial city, clawing its way into the future, dragging the rest of the world in its wake.

Thanks for your hard work!

I urge the Chicago Commission On Landmarks to grant Landmark Designation to the Century and Consumer Buildings.

This is not just a case of "WAAAH save the pretty old buildings." These two properties are exemplary expressions of Chicago's distinct voice in the world's built environment.

Furthermore a practical reuse of the buildings -housing archives - has been identified that not only utilized the existing structure but embraces the physical realities surrounding the properties. Where lack of natural light due to taller surrounding buildings would usually be perceived as a liability, it is a considerable asset for the new stated use. And there are organizations interested in using this potential resource.

It is my understanding that in previous meetings it has been determined that both buildings meet CCL criteria for landmark status. So what's the hold up?!

This should be a win/win/win -Save the buildings, house archives, and by doing so, the federal government turns liabilities into assets.

As a former Chicagoan who lives in Los Angeles, city that frequently erases its built history, I plead with you to take the first step in this process. Chicago's future should include its signature past.

Thank you!

Please consider my written testimony regarding the potential landmarking of the Century Building (202 S. State St.) and Consumers Building (220 S. State St.) in downtown Chicago.

I am the owner of a retail business very near these two buildings. My business is a women's fashion boutique called Florodora, and we are located on Dearborn Street, at the ground level of the landmark Monadnock Building. I opened the business in 2007, so I have been a witness to the changes in the neighborhood over the past 16 years, both good and bad.

One of the positive changes is the increase in tourism in the area. Several nice hotels have opened in the south part of the Loop, bringing more visitors to the area. As office worker traffic in the neighborhood has decreased, some of this has been offset by the increase in tourists, allowing us to remain in business even as many retail stores in the Loop have closed.

But if one asks the out-of-town visitors what attracted them to the area, as I often do, it is easy to figure out that Chicago's historic architecture is at the top of the list. In particular, the concentration of historic early skyscrapers in the south part of the Loop makes it a very special place to visit for people from around the country and around the world. I'm sure it's easy for Chicagoans to take for granted what we have, but others recognize that we have a legacy of late-19th and early-20th century architecture, particular to high rises, that is unmatched in the world.

In this context, to destroy the beautiful and impressive Century and Consumers buildings would be a tragedy. A colossal loss that could not be undone.

These two buildings are important contributors to an historic neighborhood that is honestly unmatched in the world.

It is embarrassing that under the federal government's watch, these two buildings have been allowed to become vacant and fall into disrepair. Again, as a nearby store owner, I can testify that the federal government has allowed that block of State Street to decline, affecting everything around it, including my business. Tearing down the buildings would not help this situation; it would make it worse by essentially leaving a blank space along State Street.

It is time for the City of Chicago to step up, do the right thing, and declare the Century and Consumers buildings to be historic landmarks, as the important contributors they are to the surrounding area. It is also time for the federal government to allow the buildings to be redeveloped and reactivated in a way that preserves the architecture, puts them to good use, reactivates the block, and of course considers security of the federal courthouse nearby. Given the creative spirit that thrives in Chicago, this is all very possible, and is the only worthy outcome we should be pursuing.

Thanks for your consideration and attention.

Urging you to give landmark status to 202 S. State & 220 S. State

[Warning: External email]

As a Chicago citizen, I am writing to urge you to grant landmark status (preliminary, and ultimately, final) to the Century Building (202 S. State) and the Consumers Building (220 S. State). They are architecturally significant buildings, and they are at risk for demolition out of the absolutely flimsiest of possible reasons. Please take this step - Chicago has lost too many of its great buildings already. Thank you.

Restoration or Wrecking Ball?

Chicago's Early Chicago Skyscrapers are currently being considered as a UNESCO World Heritage Site.

But the possible demolition of the Century and Consumers Buildings would jeopardize this extraordinary designation and international recognition.

And just as the historic buildings were on the verge of being beautifully restored, the Feds earmarked $52 million taxpayers dollars to demolish these two outstanding Early Chicago Skyscrapers and replace them with...a permanent fenced security zone with perimeter landscaping, which will become a permanent void in State Street's historic streetwall.

Their claim is that the demolition is required because there is no plan for reuse and that the rear windows endanger the adjacent courthouse security.

But there IS an adaptive reuse plan that addresses the security concerns. It's brilliant, creative, and its stakeholders are highly motivated to move forward.

After two years of planning, the Chicago Collaborative Archives Center's adaptive reuse plan has motivated leadership, support from nearly 20 archives, and interest from financial strong institutions. Detailed plans and architectural drawings were presented at the widely covered press conference on May 18, 2022.

Most importantly, this creative and innovative adaptive reuse plan was specifically designed to meet known security related issues, including bricking up rear windows and limiting access to upper floors.

Landmark or Landfill?

So after being vacant and mothballed for nearly twenty years, the fate of the historic Century and Consumers Buildings is about to be determined.

These proud and elegant Chicago School skyscrapers are located on State Street in the vibrant and thriving heart of Chicago's Loop. The 16-story Century Building was built in 1915 and designed by Holabird and Roche. The 22-story Consumers Building was built in 1913 and designed by Jenney, Mundie & Jensen. Both are on listed on the National Register for Historic Places.

In 2005, the Federal Government took ownership of these buildings through its power of eminent domain with plans to renovate and reuse these buildings. But due to the lack of federal funding, the renovation never happened.

All will be lost if the $52 million dollars of federal funds are used to demolish the Century and Consumers Buildings.

Please sign the petition to Save the Century & Consumers Buildings.

1. We encourage the Illinois Delegation in Washington D.C. including Senator Dick Durbin (202-224-2152), Senator Tammy Duckworth (202-224-2854), and Congressman Danny Davis (202-225-5006) to take urgent action to support this effort.

2. We encourage the City of Chicago to take immediate steps to designate the Century and Consumers Buildings as Chicago Landmarks which would protect them from demolition.

These buildings are irreplaceable! Tearing them down because of a vague security concern would be a historic mistake on par with tearing down the Old Mercantile Exchange so that it could sit as a surface parking lot for going on 20 years.

Change.org Petition by Preservation Chicago Dated: 4/11/23

"For decades, the Federal Government has been a slumlord in Chicago's South Loop, allowing these two classic era Chicago skyscrapers to sit empty and rot. Now, they are using specious security claims to justify spending $52 million in earmarks to create a huge hole of Chicago's State Street by demolishing the structures, only five years after their invitation for proposals received a very real, fully-funded plan to preserve them. We must not allow these important components of Chicago's world-renowned architectural heritage to be destroyed for a new Block 37, another heart-of-the-city block of historic buildings bulldozed to create an empty, dirt-filled lot for nearly two decades. Rescind the earmark. Stop the demolition. Save, restore, and reuse

"Yes, save the buildings. Even if it wasn't a huge waste of funds they should be saved for their history and potential usefulness. "These proud and elegant Chicago School skyscrapers are located on State Street in the vibrant and thriving heart of Chicago's Loop. The 16-story Century Building was built in 1915 and designed by Holabird and Roche. The 22-story Consumers Building was built in 1913 and designed by Jenney, Mundie & Jensen. Both are on listed on the National Register for Historic Places.""

"Chicago is not known for its gravel lots, it is known for its architecture, it's beautiful skyline, and rich history. These buildings are part of the historical society for a reason, and that means they should be protected. Please don't take away from what makes Chicago, well Chicago."

W. White	Muscle Shoals	AL	35662 US	5/21/2022	"From my perspective, as both a historic preservationist and a fiscal conservative, this is a wasteful boondoggle of a project that should be stopped immediately. The Federal Government should not be in the business of demolishing perfectly sound historic buildings. If they have no use for these structures, they should be sold to private developers for them to restore, which would improve the community and add to the tax base, not subtract from it."
Travis Root	Chicago	IL	60657 US	5/21/2022	"I often walk by them on my way to library-- make no mistake, these are gorgeous architectural treasures, despite being mistreated for the past two decades. They're some of the last of Chicago's early skyscrapers with that thin, blade-like appearance, because they haven't been filled in on either side, a bold showcase of Chicago's structural engineering innovation. This city deserves to have its treasures preserved for future generations of Chicagoans."
Rhett Snyder	Boulder	CO	80303 US	5/21/2022	"Historic architecture, and especially historic buildings such as these are what makes Chicago the city it is. To tear these down would be a travesty for the history of Chicago architecture. If the government cannot find a use for them, then perhaps they shouldn't have obtained them through eminent domain in the first place. The "safety concern" aspect is simply absurd, as there are plenty of other tall buildings around, just a bit further away; anyone with knowledge of use of a rifle can target slight distances such as those from other buildings with ease."

"So it is more important to build a Gravel Lot, for security than renovate two historic buildings that could be used for a variety of purposes? When in the name of all that is right, is destruction the answer? If there is a good plan to re-use and revitalize these buildings, surely that is better than creating a Gravel Lot that will be useless and a possible Eye-Sore!! As Prince Charles once

"Scraping these Chicago School Skyscrapers with Chicago windows out of the Loop Retail Historic District? the heart of a city of Skyscrapers? would be like the whacking a couple old gentlemen in the park because you want their park bench! Once they're gone, this kind of design & craftsmanship will never be seen again - culturally & because we can't afford to replace it any more! The G.S.A.'s waste of material & waste of energy to wreck them is as unsustainable as it is inexcuseable! When I lived in Sacramento, the narrow end of a block-long Hyatt hotel went up on the north side of 12th street next to my favorite Prairie style highrise (~10 flr. apt). The Hyatt set back the width of this apartment house from the L street curb looking into the shady green of the east Capitol lawn... but it DID NOT match the architectural features & quality of the renderings in newspapers. After the uglified Hyatt went up, a garden was built along L street north up to the Hyatt & west up to the back of my favorite building. But"

"I am so sick of the impulse to destroy things rather than restore them. That is nuts in our world where resources are limited. It seems to me that if there are groups who want to restore historic buildings, they should have first dibs no matter what anyone else says or wants. New is often not better, only new and it sounds as though there is not a positive plan for when the buildings are destroyed. The Chicago skyline is remarkable and needs to stay that way, Removing 2 buildings will not make it better. Just stop the destruction unless there is absolutely no other action that can be taken. These buildings are definitely not in that category. R.Sheets"

The excuse they are a danger to federal courthouses is a hypothetical BS, which would require hundreds of such demolitions if you follow that absurd logic.
