

Euthanasia. CACC is working hard to increase the number of healthy animals placed in homes through our adoption, redemption and transfer programs. This graph shows the number of animals humanely euthanized by CACC between 2006 and 2012. This includes animals that were brought to CACC critically injured or severely ill. It also includes animals that were brought to CACC by an owner requesting humane euthanasia. Through responsible pet ownership, Chicago can work as a community to reduce the number of homeless pets in the city.
