Sexual Harassment
Don’t Ignore It- Report it!

Sexual Harassment in employment is prohibited.

A sexual harassment victim can be either the same sex or the opposite sex of the harasser.

Examples of sexual harassment include:

• Unwelcome sexually suggestive comments, gestures, e-mails, or pictures
• Unwelcome physical contact
• Requesting sexual favors for employment benefits
• Threats that suggest a relationship (sexual or personal) is necessary for better treatment in the workplace (ex. employment, promotion)

Employers can be held responsible for:

• The conduct of supervisors and other representatives
• The conduct of non-supervisory/managerial staff, if the employer is aware of misconduct and fails to take corrective action

If you believe you have been a victim of sexual harassment in employment, don’t ignore it, report it to the CCHR.
