The Department of Housing is seeking students who want to acquire knowledge and valuable work experience in public sector/city government operations while assisting with various duties in the Policy and Research Division. The Policy and Research Division is responsible for conducting research, performing analysis, providing advice, and developing best practice recommendations that reflect the residential land use and development priorities of the City of Chicago across housing types, with special attention to workforce and affordable housing. The Policy and Research Division also provides general support to the larger Department when city-assisted projects involving affordable housing are reviewed. The actual research prospects associated with this internship will be finalized with input from the student; however, the research support that we are seeking for this position involves key issues in affordable housing policy (state and federal); best practices among jurisdictions to address key housing issues; and important data and data sources to inform policy analysis. As an intern, your specific interest in affordable housing practices and principles across North America will be an asset and knowledge of Chicago history, a plus. The ideal student is highly motivated and dedicated to improving public service while obtaining “hands-on work experience” in a fast-paced environment.
